The newly released Black Ice Auto-print SDK version 15.02 includes a new Auto-print Multi-Threaded Service C# Sample, allowing developers to convert documents simultaneously without user interaction utilizing multiple Black Ice virtual printer drivers.

By using the new sample application, developers can easily integrate the multi-threaded printing capability into their own applications.

The new Auto-print Multi-Threaded Service C# Sample is running as a Windows Service. This allows the Auto-print Multi-Threaded service to continue with the document conversion in unattended mode even after the current user logs off.

The latest Auto-print SDK version includes updated documentation with information about how to Install, Build, Redistribute and Use the Auto-print Multi-Threaded Service C# Sample. The updated documentation helps developers streamline the integrating of the new multi-threaded printing capability into their application.

The complete list of improvements in the latest Auto-print SDK includes the following:

- Added Auto-print Multi-Threaded Service C# Sample
- Updated Document Imaging DLLs to version 12.60.600
- Stability improvement for opening certain multi-page JPEG compressed TIFF files
- Updated elicense.dll to version 5.15.207
- Manual registration window was not shown on some connection errors (43 and 44)
- Updated manuals
